

WANT OIL LEASE ON 9000 ACRES

Chicago and Pittsburg Oil Men to Drill for Gas and Oil in Frankfort Township

Several weeks ago four oil promoters from Chicago and Pittsburg, visited Frankfort township looking over the territory for possibilities of traces of natural gas and oil and came to the conclusion that both are likely to be found if wells are sunk deep enough.

The promoters decided that in order to make their operations any thing worth while they must have a territory at least three by five miles, consequently they mapped out the territory in which they wish to concentrate their operations as follows: Beginning at a point northeast of Mokena and extending five miles to the south to the Frankfort and the Green Garden town line, thence a mile west of Frankfort and two miles east of Frankfort to the Will and Cook county line. A meeting of the farmers owning land in this section was held at Frankfort hall on Wednesday afternoon at which the promoters outlined the following proposition to the farm owners:

The promoters are seeking to lease farm land for gas and oil prospecting purposes for a period of 5 years. The first year they are only to pay one dollar to bind the lease. The following four years they are to pay the farm owners 25 cents per acre per year lease rights. Soon as they start drilling on a farm they assume all responsibility for any damage that might be done and also will pay the land owner $100 per year for each natural gas well they bring in and addition give to the land owner all the gas he wants for heating, lighting, cooking free of charge. In case an oil well is brought in the farmer is to get 1/4 of the royalty such well produces. The promoters plan to sink their wells from 2500 to 4500 feet and deeper if prospects warrant. All expenses are to be borne solely by the promoters and no stocks or shares will be sold.

At the meeting held Wednesday afternoon at Frankfort about thirty-eight farm owners were present and seemed agreeable to the terms offered them. Another meeting is to be held at the same place next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at which time the farm owners are to sign land leases with the promoters.

Messrs. Barton and Joseph of Chicago are two of the interested promoters and are handling the local end of the proposed operations. This is no corporation, but only a group of individual promoters.

The entire township is agog over the proposition. A number of years ago there was much excitement when a number of Mokena and also Frankfort men got together and engaged an oil driller from Indiana to sink a well on the Wm. C. Schmuhl farm in New Lenox but after spending about $5,000 in the venture, the project was dropped after the well was sunk about 1,000 feet and only water was struck. The new promoters do not expect to drill any where near the old well site.

If the farm owners sign up the oil promoters expect to start drilling operations within two weeks.

Many years ago there were indications of natural gas in dug wells around Mokena. At that time two men were killed by gas fumes when they attempted to clean out a dug well on the Brummund farm now the Cappel farm west of Mokena.

At about the same time an attempt was made to clean out a dug well on the Martin Heim place in Mokena now owned by Mrs. John Semmler and on which property the News-Bulletin office is located. In order to determine whether it was safe for a well cleaner to go down in the well, Mr. Heim had a bucket of burning coal lowered into the well, but when the bucket was down about 20 feet the fire was snuffed out. Several more similar experiments were made, but the fire was snuffed out each time, so the plan of cleaning out this well which is 36 feet deep, was given up. This well is still in existence but has not been used for many years.

If natural gas or oil should be found in this vicinity, there would be a tremendous boom to follow.

Elmer Sippel, Mrs. Jessie Gilmore Married in Ind

Elmer Sippel, senior head of the firm of K. Sippel's Sons, of Mokena and Mrs. Jessie Gilmore, also of Mokena, were quietly united in marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hunter at Warsaw, Ind., Jan. 28th. They have gone on an extended honeymoon trip thru Arizona and the southwest will also go to Honolulu. They expect to return in June.

Mokena Has Higher Tax Rate

Tax rates of the various cities and villages in Will County made public last week, show that Mokena has the highest tax rate of any village in the county. Mokena has a school tax of $2.48 and a village tax of $2.57 1-3. Frankfort's rate is only $2.16 school tax and $1.33 1-3 for village tax. In a number of other towns and villages in the county the tax rates have been reduced.

Morning Star Helps Many

Report of Morning Star mission for the first quarter of the 18th year by Supt. Peter H. McCarthy: Conversions, 161. Free meals, 3,121. Free beds, 1,456. Free clothing to 463 persons. Free new testaments, 76. Free gospels, 450. Police court and jail visits, 81. Relief to 7 families. Paid railroad fares for 24 persons.

Wednesday three boys 14 years old flunked in school; felt so bad they left their homes in Chicago, Ill. Tom Murphy, Glenn Baird and Jack Richert. Picked up by the police. They turned them over to Supt. McCarthy to send them home. Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Schlatter and two children lacked $7.13 to get to Saginaw, Mich. Supt. McCarthy extended the helping hand.

Eldon Styrers, aged 18, to Summitville, Ind. Trustees meet at Woodruff hotel for first quarter of 18th year.

Junk Truck Hit By Train

The Cappel crossing of the R. I. east of Mokena was the scene of another auto accident Monday afternoon when the west bound 2 o'clock R. I. passenger train going about 40 miles per hour hit a junk truck owned by a Mr. Goldstein of Chicago.

The engine pilot caught the rear end of the truck which was headed north, and tore it to pieces. The cab was torn off and Goldstein was thrown about 50 feet. He was so fortunate that he only received a slight cut on his hand. He had worn glasses which were torn off his face but were later found near the crossing unbroken.

The truck was loaded with junk, rags and old papers which were strewn over the right of way. A steam pipe on the engine was damaged which delayed the train over half an hour. The crossing where the crash occurred is not a bad one, for approaching trains can be seen in either direction for a long way if one only looks.

Pastor Surprised On Anniversary

The congregation of the St. John Evangelical church pleasantly surprised their pastor, Rev. W. J. Cramer, last Sunday evening when they celebrated the first anniversary of their pastor's pastorate in Mokena.

Following the regular evening services, the officials of the various church organizations and of the congregation, brought words of kind greetings and felicitations on their behalf to the worthy pastor and his family. The pastor was much moved by these kind thoughts and in a few and well chosen words expressed his appreciation and thanks.

The M. E. congregation joined St. John's in the celebration. Rev. Glenn T. Beatty gave the anniversary address. Orchestra furnished the musical program and there were also a number of vocal selections. Rev. Mr. Cramer was present with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

At the close of the services the entire congregation was invited in the church parlors where refreshments were served. Rev. Mr. Cramer and family and Rev. Mr. Beatty and Mrs. Wm. Bechtel were in the receiving line. All enjoyed the event and wished the pastor many more such happy occasions.

Rev. Mr. Cramer has set a very excellent record of church activity during his first year as pastor of St. John's. He is a real live wire.

Chairman Wm. Lankenau Promises to Aid Mokena In Getting Hard Road

Another meeting of the Mokena Development and Hard Road Improvement Association, has become a matter of record in the archives of the secretary and has passed into local history.

The attendance was not only the largest, but so great has been the interest aroused that the school auditorium was filled to its capacity.

Supervisor Wm. Lankenau of our neighboring village of Frankfort, and who is also chairman of the Will County Board of Supervisors, was among the early arrivals, having responded to an invitation extended to him to be present pursuant to a resolution passed at a previous meeting by the organization. There were a number of others present from Will and Cook county communities, among the number being former Representative John Walker of Joliet.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Ona E. McGovney and after the reading and adoption of the minutes of the previous meeting, Mr. Lankenau was asked to illumine the gloom that had gathered over certain reported actions of the recently adjourned meeting of the county board, by stating his reasons for ignoring the resolution placed in his hands by the Mokena organization asking for a consideration of the subject of a bond issue for road building. His statement was a frank confession of the attitude of opposition by the majority of the board to the consideration of a bond issue and also an admission of his inability in any way to control the moods of the recalcitrant members of the County Board at the same time assuring the Mokena organization of his hearty support in their endeavor to get a concrete outlet on the Wolf Road.

In the questions and answers and the discussion that followed there was no attempt to mince matters or to conceal the evidence of dissatisfaction, which of course was perfectly natural as there is so much at stake in this matter so important to the citizens of our vicinity.

Incidentally the usual magnanimous spirit of the Mokena Association was shown in their assurance of real interest in the construction of route 51 as designated in the recent $100,000,000 bond issue and Mr. Lankenau was made to understand quite thoroughly that Mokena is as much interested in the road in the eastern part of Frankfort township as they would be pleased to have them interested in theirs, and as a further assurance of good will Mr. Lankenau was unanimously elected as vice president of the Mokena Association.

Mr. Walker responded to an invitation by the chair to address the assembly and in his usual genial manner, gave much valuable information and assured the hard road boosters "that he would do all he could" to get the Wolf road project thru. He also pointed out that the hundred million dollar bond issue is in no wise sufficient to pay for all the hardroads to be constructed under this act. A vote of thanks was given the speaker and he was asked to come again.

The discussion then became general on the subject of ways and means. Dr. E. G. MacMahon was elected treasurer and a substantial sum placed in his hands by the members present to defray the expense of literature, stationary, etc.

Peter Michelsen, one of the live wire members reported that Representative John Jenco had phoned him a short time before the meeting that he was preparing a bill for presentation to the legislature in an attempt to "get Mokena on the map". Mr. Michelsen also handed the clerk several letters from different public officials which were read by the clerk. These were responses to the urgent requests for information and assistance in Mokena's legitimate endeavors to secure a recognition of their just demands for the Wolf road improvement. There was in these replies from the powers that be a sombre sameness, although differing somewhat in their style of construction. As a whole they were as rigid in their stereotyped similarity as were the composite columns in the compromise architecture of ancient Greece in their attempt to please everybody, by their combination of the Corinthian, Ionic, Doric and Tuscan forms of building.

It has been the policy of the Association to work out every line to a success or failure and this spirit continues dominant. The evidence of inability or lack of desire to help on the part of those appealing, to has not only been enlightening, but has served to intensify the determination to press forward to the ultimate consummation of their purpose. A committee was appointed to draft a form of petition to be presented to the county board at their next meeting asking them for a submission of the question of a bond issue for road construction to the voters of the district. This petition will be circulated during the coming week.

Mr. Lankenau said that the reason the county board was against the bond issue was that they felt that as only half of the population of Will county are tax payers it would not seem just that the non-taxpayers of the county should be given the privilege of voting on a proposition the tax payers would have to pay for if it carried.

Frankfort is not positively assured that route 51 will come thru their village as no public hearing has been held as yet on the routing.

The next meeting of the Mokena Hard Road Association will be held at the Mokena school on next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. All good road advocates are urged to be out to make a full house as a lot of important matters are still to be considered. Come and bring a friend or neighbor.

Old Story of "I Did Not Know It Was Loaded" Causes Tragedy at Orland

The old, old story of "I did not know it was loaded" ended in a tragedy at Orland last Sunday afternoon when one brother accidentally shot his brother, ending in the victim's death.

Last Sunday afternoon shortly after dinner Earl Jacobsen, aged 13 years and his brother Roy aged 15 years, borrowed an automatic 22 caliber rifle and went out in the back yard and fired a few shots. The rifle jammed and not being familiar with the gun's mechanism, Roy thought all the shots had been fired and that the gun was not loaded any longer. The two boys then went into the adjoining yard of their neighbor, Mrs. Christ Yunker and set the rifle in the garage and decided to go roller skating, when Roy picked up the rifle again and pointing it at his brother said in fun "If you don't look out I'll shoot the button off your coat." Earl replied "You had better not or I'll tell ma." Just then Roy reached down and pulled the trigger and to his horror the gun was loaded and the shot hit his brother in the abdomen. Horrified and panic stricken Roy ran home and told his father of the tragedy. Mrs. Yunker hearing the shot ran out on the porch and Earl called to her saying "He shot me." The injured boy's father picked him up and carried him home. Dr. Schussler of Oak Lawn was summoned and hurried the injured lad to the Burnside hospital where an X-ray examination showed that the bullet had lodged in the spleen. An emergency operation was resorted to, but as the bullet had cut a vein an internal hemorrhage set in causing death later in the evening.

The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the Orland M. E. church, a Christian Science reader of Chicago and the local M. E. pastor, Rev. Elmer Seterlund officiated. Burial in the Orland cemetery.

Both boys were students in the Orland school, Roy being a student of the Orland High School and Earl was a student in the graded department. The slain lad is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen, who have been residents of Orland for the past six years, one brother and two sisters. The whole community was deeply shocked over the awful tragedy and deeply sympathized with the grief stricken parents and the heart broken brother. This was another terrible example of the great danger that is inevitably found when children handle deadly firearms.

MOKENA P. T. A. ENJOY LIVE MESSAGES BY LIVE WIRE SPEAKERS

The Parent Teacher Association meeting held in the school house Tuesday night was the best meeting of this year.

In the absence of the president, N. F. Heiman, Mrs. Rose Moriarity presided. After the regular routine business the speakers of the evening were introduced. Prof. Worst of Lockport, former Supt. of the City schools of Joliet, and now is supervisor of Hand Work in the Chicago schools was the first speaker.

Mr. Worst gave a most interesting talk, telling of his work, of the objections of those parents, who do not understand the underlying sound principles of this work. He showed how in the beginners grades the number work is made more interesting and therefore easily grasped. How lessons in language is worked out of the hand work and likewise other branches of studies. He also showed how very often it greatly helps to overcome the problems of a troublesome child by having that child busy using his hands and mind in doing something of a constructive nature.

In the discussion period following his speech, the thought was brought out comparing the difference between the rural and city schools. It was apparent that very little hand work could be introduced in a classroom where one teacher has three grades of a fairly large number of pupils to teach in a day, whereas the city schools have only one teacher to a grade with a limit on the number.

Mr. Hayes of the Illinois Home and Founding Society also gave an interesting talk telling of his work in placing homeless boys of the age of 12 to 20 in homes. He spoke of the problem child and showed how much of it can be over come by proper understanding. He showed where crime is over come to a great extent by placing a boy in a home where he can be given sympathy and home comforts, instead of committing a young boy to a reform school where he is mingling with older boys with often times decided criminal ideas.

A discussion followed his talk also dealing on the reform school and child management.

We hope the Association will soon again bring good speakers to our midst and that others will avail themselves of the opportunity to come and hear.

A New Lincoln Letter

Executive Mansion.

Washington, December 23, 1862.

Dear Fanny

It is with deep grief that I learn of the death of your kind and brave father; and, especially, that it is affecting your young heart beyond what is common in such cases. In this sad world of ours, sorrow comes to all; and, to the young, it comes with bitterest agony, because it takes them unawares. The older have learned to ever expect it. I am anxious to afford some alleviation of your present distress. Perfect relief is not possible, except with time. You can not now realize that you will ever feel better. Is not this so? And yet it is a mistake. You are sure to be happy again. To know this, which is certainly true, will make you some less miserable now. I have had experience enough to know what I say; and you need only to believe it, to feel better at once. The memory of your dear father, instead of an agony, will yet be a sad sweet feeling in your heart, of a pure, and holier sort than you have known before.

Please present my kindest regards to your afflicted mother.

Miss Fanny McCullough.

Your sincere friend, A. LINCOLN.

By ELMO S. WATSON

YEAR by year the fame of Abraham Lincoln grows and each succeeding year sees new accessions to the nation's priceless store of Lincolniana. Amazing as is the mass of this material accumulated in the comparatively brief time that has elapsed since Secretary Stanton exclaimed, "Now he belongs to the ages!" it is apparent that, if we are to judge by the discoveries of the last few years, there is still much to be learned before the last word on the career of this one of the world's truly great can be written.

Last year was, if anything, richer in the matter of new light being thrown upon the life of Lincoln than many which have preceded it, and scarcely a month passed that did not bring some event which served to recall his name and fame. In April congress authorized the purchase of the famous Oldroyd collection of Lincoln mementoes which for a number of years have been preserved by Osborn H. Oldroyd in the house on Tenth street in Washington, where Lincoln was carried from Ford's theater on the fatal night of April 14, 1865, and where he died a short time later. The tragedy of that evening was recalled again last November when the barn in which John Wilkes Booth stabbed the horse on which he made his escape was put on the auction block by the War department and sold to a real estate operator.

In May, 1926, Robert T. Lincoln, the ninety-year-old son of the Civil war President, presented to the congressional library a trunk, the contents of which, it is believed, is a veritable gold mine of Lincoln material. An air of mystery has hung about the trunk for years and the secret of what it contains has been steadfastly kept by Robert Lincoln, despite all the efforts by biographers of Lincoln to make use of the material it is supposed to contain. The gift to the congressional library was made with the provision that under no circumstances was the trunk to be opened until 25 years after Robert Lincoln's death. That means that Lincoln scholars will have to wait until 1951 before they can delve into the treasures of information which they believe this receptacle holds. The death of Robert T. Lincoln on July 26, 1926, was another outstanding event of Lincoln interest last year, since his passing meant that the male line of the Lincoln family was ended.

Others were the publication from time to time during the year of the researches by Rev. William E. Barton which dispelled many of the myths about Lincoln, including the circumstances surrounding the Bixby letter, Lincoln's part in the reprieve of William Scott, the "sleeping sentinel," some interesting facts concerning the Gettysburg address and the controversy over whether Lincoln ever said, "You can fool some of the people all the time; all the people some of the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time." No less important was the publication of Carl Sandburg's two-volume study of "Abraham Lincoln. The Prairie Years," in which appeared some 65 letters and papers in Lincoln's handwriting, which had never before been published.

Recently there has come to light in Bloomington, Ill., a city which is closely associated with the early career of the Great Emancipator, another Lincoln letter, reproduced above, which is here made public for the first time. It was written to Miss Fanny McCullough of Bloomington soon after the death of her father, Lieut. Col. William McCullough of the Fourth Illinois cavalry, who was killed near Coffeyville, Miss., December 5, 1862.

Colonel McCullough, a pioneer of the Prairie state, was born in Kentucky in 1812 and came to McLean county in 1826. At the outbreak of the Blackhawk war in 1832 three companies of mounted volunteers were raised in McLean county for service against the Indians and McCullough was a member of the First company. The First got its fill of fighting savages on May 14, 1832, when the Indian leader defeated Major Stillman's command of 275 men in a brief engagement popularly and ironically known as "Stillman's Run."

Lieut.-Col. William McCullough

Of the few who performed at all creditably in this affair, so far as there is any record, McCullough was one. The day before the fight he had lost his gun, but during the engagement, it is said, he captured another from an Indian. A friend who knew him during the Civil war and who usually referred to him as "a man of reckless bravery," in commenting upon this fact, said, "Armed or unarmed, I cannot conceive of William McCullough as afraid of anyone, savage or civilized." This bears out the statement that when Captain Corvell of the First, amid all the confusion of the retreat, tried to get his men to make a stand, McCullough was one of the ten soldiers who rallied around their leader in his vain attempt to stem the rout.

After the close of the brief Indian war, McCullough returned to McLean county. In the fall of 1840 he was elected sheriff, an office which he held for three successive terms. He was next elected circuit clerk and held that office four successive terms. It was during this time that he probably met Lincoln, as there is no record of their having met during the Blackhawk war.

At the outbreak of the Civil war, McCullough was exempt from service because of the loss of his right arm (which had been torn off in a threshing machine in 1840), defective sight in one eye and his age. But he was determined to serve and in August, 1861, he obtained permission from President Lincoln to be mustered into the service as lieutenant colonel of the Fourth Illinois cavalry. "William McCullough was the ideal cavalryman," writes one historian. "He was a superb horseman of martial appearance, with a full, resonant voice, white hair and beard, a natural leader of men, a courage that feared no one; watchful, careful of his men, he soon became one of General Grant's most trusted officers."

He took part in the capture of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson, and went through the battles of Shiloh and Corinth. After entering Corinth the Fourth cavalry, which was a part of the advance guard of General Sherman's army, was sent toward the west, reaching Memphis in August, 1862. In September the regiment moved to Trenton where it remained on scouting duty until the movement down the line of the Mobile and Ohio and the Mississippi Central began when it became a part of a brigade of cavalry commanded by Colonel Lee of the Seventh Kansas. This brigade struck the forces of the Confederate generals Van Dorn and Price near Holly Springs and followed them to Coffeyville. There the Confederates made a stand and the cavalry brigade began to retreat. The Fourth was covering the retreat. On the evening of December 5, 1862, the Confederates appeared on both sides of the rear guard and demanded its surrender. McCullough's reply was an emphatic refusal to which the men in gray responded with a volley of musketry. The colonel was killed instantly, but his command escaped.

It was this incident which inspired the Lincoln letter to Colonel McCullough's daughter, Fanny. The letter follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION

Your sincere friend, A. LINCOLN.

Miss Fanny McCullough.

This letter, revealing as it does the great heart of the man who in the darkest days of his career as President of a nation engaged in civil war, could forget the cares of state long enough to write a letter of sympathy to the daughter of an old-time friend, is strikingly similar in tone to the Bixby letter, which it antedates by nearly two years. A comparison of the two shows the same tenderness of spirit, the same sincere sympathy and the simple, direct phraseology which marks so many of the utterances of Abraham Lincoln and makes them among the best examples of noble English prose ever written. The text of the Bixby letter follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION

Washington, November 21, 1864

To Mrs. Bixby, Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam:

I have been shown in the files of the War department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Yours very sincerely and respectfully, A. LINCOLN.

The Fanny McCullough, to whom this new Lincoln letter was written, afterwards became the wife of Frank D. Orme. Her sister, Nannie L. McCullough, also married into the Orme family, a family of soldiers. Her husband was Gen. William W. Orme who entered the Union army as colonel of the Ninety-fourth Illinois infantry and whose distinguished services, especially at the siege of Vicksburg where he contracted the disease which brought about his death soon after the close of the war, made him a brigadier general. Fanny Orme died in Washington, D. C. in 1920, and upon her death the Lincoln letter was given to the present owner, Mrs. Bernadine Orme Smith of Normal, Ill. (the "twin city" of Bloomington), a daughter of Gen. William W. Orme and Nannie McCullough Orme.

HOUSEKEEPING HELPS

Woodwork finished with a good varnish may be cleaned easily with a damp cloth. If possible to choose, have all woodwork free from grooves and creases where dust finds a place to lodge.

If the cupboard shelves are varnished they will clean as easily as tiling.

The kitchen work-table if covered with zinc will be easy to keep clean and thus save scrubbing.

Keep plenty of soft paper to wipe out greasy dishes, pots and pans, thus saving the dishwashing.

Keep a bundle of newspapers handy for various uses around the kitchen—to wipe off the stove, and on which to set soiled or smoky pans.

Plan the meals a week ahead and save food and friction.

Rubber heels are a great saving of both floors and nerves. Yours and others.

Learn to close doors, drawers and screens quietly. The nervous system pays toll for jarring sights and sounds.

A dust mop will remove dust without stirring it up. A kitchen floor that has been previously swept with a broom, if dusted well with a mop will look and stay much cleaner.

Small rugs are best for sleeping rooms as they may be taken outside and dusted.

Rocking chairs are found in too great numbers in most homes; they take up much room, mar the woodwork, not to speak of bruised shins and frayed tempers.

A window shade fastened to a row of shelves makes a fine curtain to keep out the dust.

Aside from ventilation, windows are made to let in light and to look out of—why load them with heavy dust-catching hangings?

Fold a heavy rug to stand on when ironing or washing dishes. It is a great relief to tired feet.

In an emergency mend a torn hair net with a hair from your own head.

Water cress is one of our most valuable greens; being rich in mineral salts, it is a valuable tonic.

Melt alum in an iron spoon to mend china or glassware. Hot water will not dissolve it.

Paint the inside of the garbage can with two coats of paint, before it is used. It will not rust and will last much longer.

French, Italian Dishes.

The musical names given some of our homely dishes by our foreign cousins make them so interesting that they even taste better because of them. Old-fashioned mush from corn meal is called polenta. Could it possibly taste as common as mush? On Friday they serve baccala, which is just our ordinary codfish, but so disguised that its best friend would hardly recognize it.

Baccala.—Freshen a pound and a half of codfish by soaking over night. Cut into serving sized pieces and fry ten minutes in a little olive oil. For the sauce add a little olive oil to the saucepan with a clove of garlic, one chopped onion, one sliced green pepper, one bay leaf and two cloves; cook five minutes, then add a small piece of butter, one-half pint of tomatoes, salt and pepper. Put into the fish and cover closely, let simmer two hours, adding water as the moisture dries out. Serve with hot corn meal mush.

Raguone.—Few people like kidneys, for they are so often poorly prepared. Split and cut away all the white in a veal or beef kidney, cut the kidneys into cubes and drop them into boiling water; cook one minute. As they turn white drain and place in a frying pan and cook in olive oil fifteen minutes. Now put them into a casserole and cover with a sauce like the one used for baccala, with the addition of more garlic. Cover and cook slowly for several hours. Serve with rice or polenta.

Sheep's Kidneys en Brochette.—Take six sheep's kidneys, cut through the center, remove the white veins and fat. Wash well, cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes, then wipe dry. Cut one-fourth of a pound of bacon into slices half the size of the kidney, place a piece of kidney on a skewer, then a piece of bacon and another piece of kidney. Place on a broiler, baste with fat and cook over a hot fire five minutes.

Scalopin (Seasoned Veal).—Cook a thin slice of veal (pounded thin) in olive oil, season with salt and pepper; when nearly done add a tablespoonful of vinegar. Serve hot.

Braciola.—Take a pound of thin round steak, pound it to a wafer-like thickness, cut into four strips, salt and pepper freely. Chop one clove of garlic, one small onion, a little parsley, with some bread dressing, spread along the middle of each strip. Roll and tie, brown in a little fat, cook slowly thirty minutes.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Like American Glasses

Principal cities in Abyssinia are taking a liking to American glass tumblers, according to the Department of Commerce. More than 60 per cent of the tumblers used in Aden are imported from the United States. In the 50 public coffee shops, popular with the natives, at least 2,000 of the glasses in use are American made.

Mothers, Do This—

When the children cough, rub Musteroil on their throats and chests. No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musteroil at hand to give prompt relief.

As first aid, Musteroil is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musteroil is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musteroil.

Whooping Cough Relieved

This dread cough is one of the most dangerous of children's diseases. There is no cure for whooping cough. It usually runs its course, but a few drops of this well known physician's prescription will relieve the violent coughing paroxysms, and avoid vomiting. No dangerous "dosing"—nothing to upset little stomachs. Glesco also brings quick relief for coughs, colds, and spasmodic croup.

Need Only Say Anthracite

Anthracite is all that should be used when speaking of that kind of coal. The word comes directly from the Greek "anthrax," which means coal. Anthracite means "hard coal." To say "anthracite coal" is tautological. But bituminous requires the word coal after it as it is only an adjective where anthracite is a noun. To avoid trouble and wrong usage many people say "hard" and "soft" coal.

ORLAND

During the past week the Christ Lutheran school has been closed, because many of the children were sick. The following were reported sick: Ellsworth Uthe, Elizabeth and Geraldine Steffen, Ralph and Arthur Kimmel, Raymond Kniernien, Eldon Nicolai, Martin Steinhagen, Owen Nicolai, Philip and Elmer Uthe. All of these are reported doing nicely and school opened again Feb. 6th.

Melville Storz who recently entered the service station business at Burnside had an opportunity to dispose of the stand at a good profit and sold out the business last week.

The wolf hunts which have been causing much excitement in this section are over with. A number of farmers lost considerable poultry thru the visit of the wolves.

Quite a number of Orland people attended the first anniversary celebration of Rev. W. J. Cramer of the St. John's Evangelical church at Mokena Sunday night.

Elmer Kueltzo is very sick at the Mercy Hospital in Chicago.

Farm Bureau Meeting

The Will County Farm Bureau will hold their annual Farm Bureau meeting, which is open to all Farm Bureau members, on Wednesday, Feb. 16, in the Joliet Chamber of Commerce, on Ottawa St., one block north of Cass St.

This year the Farm Bureau will have an unusual program for the annual meeting. Mr. J. C. Watson of the Illinois Agricultural Association, a status station and tax expert of unusual ability will be the speaker of the day. Mr. Watson has been able to get a tax cut for the farmers in many counties of the state of Illinois, Will County included. He undoubtedly will have a message that every farmer in Will County should hear. Mr. George R. Wicker will discuss the oil companies that have been formed in other parts of the state through the Farm Bureaus. The program will open in the morning with an address by Wm. Webb, President of the Farm Bureau, and reports by John Cryder, Secretary, Robert A. Baker, Treasurer, and Farm Adviser J. Franklin Hedgecock.

There will be given away to the members at least three carloads of limestone. The companies that have already offered to make a donation are the Dolese Shephard Co. of Chicago, the Consumers Company of Chicago, and the Adam Groth Company of Joliet. Besides this limestone there will be given away also, a considerable tonnage of raw rock phosphate, which is being offered by the Ruhm phosphate and Chemical Company of Mt. Pleasant Tennessee, and the Thompson phosphate Company of Centerville, Tennessee. The members of the Farm Bureau will sign their names and place them in a box as they come in to the meeting. These names will be drawn during the noon hour and the names that are drawn from the box will receive their donations. There will be at least 130 tons of limestone and 8 tons of raw rock phosphate given away. Come hear the program and help elect your officers for the coming year.

New Type of Attic Gives Extra Room

© Colton & Co. Inc. Chicago 1926.

HALF the fun of having a home is knowing the joys of hospitality. Every housewife's dream is to have a dainty spare room always ready for the unexpected guest, but the small servantless house does not allow for it. What happens in most households when some one descends from out-of-town, is a great scurry and flurry doubling up other members of the family, or drawing lots to decide who is to sleep on the davenport in the living room.

In many homes, however, space for an ideal guest room is sitting idle, year after year, waiting for some one to recognize its possibilities and to hang out the "Welcome" sign. This is in the attic. The average unfinished attic is simply a dump heap of a lot of things that may be seized as priceless antiques two hundred years hence but right now are worthless, discarded articles. Legitimate storage such as screens and trunks may be housed in the basement, or, if the area is large enough, in one end of the attic.

The first step is to finish off the interior, sealing the rafters and side walls. By using Celotex insulating lumber for this, a large part of the heating problem is solved. Sixty per cent of the heat generated in a house, engineers tell us, is lost by escaping through the attic, to which the heat naturally rises. The cane fiber insulating lumber retards this escape and therefore tends to keep the guest room at a comfortable temperature. The addition of a small stove or gas or electric heater will give a hospitable glow and afford all the extra heat needed.

The line where the rafters meet the floor is the point of greatest heat leakage and should be carefully covered with strips of the insulating lumber before erecting the side walls. If partitions are necessary, they may be erected by nailing boards of this same insulating lumber to 2 by 4 studs.

Attic windows are apt to be small, often of the dormer style, and therefore every effort must be made to keep the walls light. Plaster may be put over the ceiling, eliminating the need of lath, or the walls may be left untreated. The soft, texturelike surface, a light beige in color, is an attractive background to any bedroom. In this case, the joints are covered with strips of insulating lumber, beveled, or with ordinary molding.

The floor may be given two or three coats of good paint, and a couple of inexpensive rag rugs put down. The floors will not be drafty because of the heat rising from below.

The furnishings should be as simple and homey as possible, as this is a decidedly informal sort of room. The cot, day-bed, or old iron bedstead repainted should have a good mattress. A chest of drawers with a mirror hung above, a writing table and bedside stand and a couple of chairs, one of them for lounging, are all that are needed. A few cans of enamel will make them appear most attractive, especially if some harmonizing color scheme is used, such as lavender and pale green or yellow. Little white muslin curtains with ruffles and tie-backs should grace the windows.

Every attic has different corners and contours but practically all of them have small spaces that can be fitted up with shelves for books, an unexpected ledge for a candlestick or similar cozy touch.

The most important thing is to have it neat, spick and span, and always in readiness for the unexpected guest.

Attention, Middle-Aged Women!

Fort Wayne, Ind.—"Dr. Pierce's medicines were a life saver to me at middle age. When I reached that period it seemed that I had all the ailments and distress that can come to a woman. My nerves gave way, I was so weak that some days I was not able to be on my feet at all. I had hot flashes, dizzy spells, backache and pains thru my sides. I was a complete physical wreck when I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery. These medicines soon ended the suffering and distress and brought me thru this critical period a strong healthy woman."—Mrs. Ida Jackman, 421½ Baker St.

Not a Mechanical Ailment

Recently, a rather nervous young man entered a downtown typewriter establishment. When asked by the office girl what he desired, he replied, "There's something wrong with my typewriter, and I wish you would send someone over to fix it." The girl called the service manager who inquired as to what the trouble might be so the repair man would have an idea as to what to look for.

With an earnest look on his face, the young man replied, "I am not sure, sir, but it doesn't seem to spell right."

PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Harry Ormerod, proscribed traitor to King George as a Stuart partisan, returning from France to London, rescues Alderman Robert Juggins from assassins. Juggins proves to be the grandson of a former steward of Ormerod's father, to whom Juggins feels himself indebted. Ormerod tells Juggins he has abandoned the Stuart cause. Juggins informs him of a Jacobite plot in the American colonies to weaken England by forwarding French interests. At its head is Andrew Murray, a Scotsman, and a Frenchman, De Veulle, deadly enemy of Ormerod. The two are in London furthering their schemes. Anticipating the plotters' return to America, Juggins arranges for Ormerod to go there with letters to Governor Burnet, friend of Juggins, and work to foil Murray. Disguised as Juggins' servant, Ormerod takes passage to America. On the ship he meets a girl, Murray's daughter, ardent Jacobite, who believes him to be loyal to the Stuarts. De Veulle recognizes Ormerod and exposes him. Taken by surprise, Ormerod is thrown overboard by the negro, Tom, but regains the deck in safety. He accuses Murray of complicity in the attempt on his life, but of course has no proof. All parties agree on a truce until they reach New York. There Ormerod saves an Indian chief, Ta-wan-ne-ars, from insult, and introduces himself to Governor Burnet, in council.

There was a murmur of assent as the meeting broke up.

"One moment, your excellency," I interposed. "I have also a letter from Master Juggins for the Honorable Cadwallader Colden of your council—if he is here."

"Indeed, he is," assented the governor. "A moment, if you please, Colden."

A thin, bustling man, with very bright black eyes and a dark complexion detached himself from the exodus and resumed his chair. His nervous fingers quickly tore loose the envelope of the letter I handed him, and he began devouring its contents, regardless of the confusion around him.

"Until tomorrow, gentlemen!"

The governor bowed the council out, and shut the door upon the last of them. He beckoned me forward.

"Sit here beside us, Master Ormerod—for so I see you are rightly named, although you traveled under Master Juggins' name. Master Juggins vouches for you. That is sufficient for me. What say you, Colden?"

"Quite sufficient," agreed the surveyor general. "Do you wish me to remain, sir?"

"Certainly. Glad to have you. Now, Master Ormerod, do you tell us as fully as you may what you know of Murray. Master Juggins hath stated you for a prominent part. I respect his judgment, but more than our immediate fortune hinges upon the issue of what we do, and I must know all."

I recounted the circumstances of my meeting with Juggins, the hearing before the lords of trade and the incidents of the voyage, not forgetting Tom's assault upon me and the strange bargain I had made with Murray.

"Then are you safe from denunciation," broke in the governor. "We think little of Hanoverian or Jacobite in New York. Here, Master Ormerod, you will find only Englishmen laboring to wrest a living from the wilderness and to extend their country's power and richness. What you were matters little. 'Tis what you are we judge you by."

"The bargain was typical of Murray. He is no ordinary villain. Already he hath persuaded the discontented elements in the province that I would take the bread from their mouths by stopping his trade. But he knows well that I would leap upon the excuse to lay him by the heels, and he will see to it that no suspicion of your past escapes."

"He threatened me with the Red Death this morning," I said. "Can you tell me what he meant by it?"

"'Tis a saying of the frontier," explained the governor. "They call red-headed Bolling and Murray's negro, Tom, the Red and the Black Deaths, for Murray is charged with having used them to remove from his path those persons he considers dangerous or whom he honors with his dislike."

"In the crowd I also heard talk of the Doom Trail," I continued.

Governor Burnet smiled grimly. "That is the popular name for the route by which Murray smuggles his trade goods to Canada. 'Tis said to be the sealing of a man's doom if he seeks the trail or any information concerning it."

"Has the traffic been suspended during Murray's absence?" I asked.

"No," replied the governor. "Bolling and Black Robe have kept it in motion."

"And who is Black Robe?"

The governor laughed outright. "You are red-hot for dangerous information, Master Ormerod. Black Robe is the Indian's name for one Pere Hyacinthe, a Jesuit missionary, who, according to some of the tales our agents bring, shares with Murray the credit for conception of the conspiracy we are debating."

"But where Murray plots for the overthrow of English rule in America in order to bring back the Jacobites and enrich himself, Black Robe's ambition is to establish France as the supreme temporal power in the world and to extend the influence of the pope by making his religion universal on this continent as it is in South America."

"Where do Black Robe and Murray make their headquarters?" I inquired.

"Murray spends part of his time in New York or in Albany, but most of the year he is absent. He says he is on trading expeditions—and we may not dispute it. But we think he stays at a station which is said to form a depot for the stores smuggled over the Doom Trail. Black Robe is reported to have a chapel there."

"'Tis called La Vierge du Bols," added Colden.

"And where is it?"

"If I knew, I should order a levy of the militia and burn it down at risk of my head," retorted the governor.

"But you must have some idea where it is?" I pressed incredulously.

Governor Burnet put down his pipe and unrolled a large scroll map which lay amongst the papers on the table.

"This is New York, Master Ormerod. Our settlements are confined to the coast districts, the island of Nassau (Long Island)—he motioned toward the window—"and the valley of Hudson's river. We have barely begun the task of colonization. There is room here for every soul in England—and to spare."

With his pipe-stem he pointed to the upper left corner.

"All this country is virgin forest. On the north and northwest 'tis bounded by the inland sea which we call Lake Cadaragui (Lake Ontario); to the southeast stretch the Adirondack mountains. Somewhere between those boundaries runs the Doom Trail. There are thousands of square miles of wilderness to search for it."

"And the Keepers of the Trail to guard its mystery," put in Colden.

"Who are they?" I questioned, as anxious as a small boy for further details.

"The Ho-nun-ne-gwen-ne-yuh," he repeated. "The Indians are a superstitious people, and they have come to believe that there is some supernatural agency behind the Keepers of the Trail. In plain English, they fear the Trail is haunted, they tell us, by the False Faces, a race of demons from the underworld, to whom Murray has sold his soul, and that the demons have rallied to his aid."

"At every turn we run against the shrewdness and wit of this fellow Murray," exploded the governor. "'Tis at once a tribute to his ability, and perhaps an index to our inferiority, that we have never been able to secure certain information of his operations."

"'Tis evident, your excellency," I ventured, "that the lords of trade will accept only positive evidence that he hath evaded the law."

"That means legal proof of smuggling," reflected the governor.

"And now that the lords of trade have suspended our law, his operations are no longer illegal, strictly speaking," said Colden. "But I make no doubt he will continue to handle the bulk of his goods over the Doom Trail, for he will not care to have his dupes in the province realize the enormous tribute they pay France through him."

Governor Burnet brought his fist down upon the table with a thud.

Species Not Popular on Railroad Trains

Fond fathers who carry pictures of their offspring sitting in their bathtubs.

People who borrow your magazine to hold over Toto's basket every time the conductor comes along.

Charming young men who insist on talking to you.

Nice old ladies who asked you, three minutes after the train has started and then every 20 minutes thereafter, whether you are positive this is the right train, why you are positive, whether you haven't ever made a mistake in a similar situation, and what you think Joe will think if they should arrive as expected.

Children who get all smeared up with chocolate and then identify you as dad-da.

"Gadslife!" he swore. "There is naught for it but war! We must be after the dog! We must run him down! But we must move unofficially. What say you, Colden?"

"We can do nothing with official support," rejoined the surveyor general, "and 'tis probable we shall receive the instructions of the lords of trade to suspend the law by the next Bristol packet."

"There can be no question of that," agreed the governor. "Well, the law shall be suspended. I will have the suspension publicly proclaimed. Then under cover we must concert the measures to be taken. That will be for Master Ormerod. Do you still crave the opportunity, knowing now the full measure of its perils, sir?"

"I am more anxious, if possible, sir," I answered. "I speak French sufficiently well to pass on the frontier for a Frenchman. As for danger—why, your excellency, the man who has ruined his life can have no fear for it. He has all to gain and nothing to lose."

"True," assented the governor. "But you know nothing of woodcraft or the life amongst the savages."

"Master Juggins gave me a letter to one Peter Corlaer, a—"

Colden sat suddenly erect.

"Peter came this morning with the Seneca chief, if your excellency will remember."

"So he did. We will have him in."

Colden went out, and returned at once with two companions. One I recognized, to my amazement, as the Indian I had befriended an hour or two earlier. He greeted me with a faint smile. To the governor he rendered the splendid arm-high salute, and his deep voice boomed out—

"Qua, Ga-en-gwa-ra-go!" ("Hail, Great Swift Arrow"—the Indians' name for the governor of New York, whoever he might be.)

The other man was more like a tavern keeper than a woodsman. At first glance he seemed all paunch, but when you studied him closely you saw that his fat was firm and hard and formed a sheathing for the most powerful set of muscles any man ever had. His face was tremendous, with little, insignificant features; but his eyes, behind the rolls of fat which almost masked them, twinkled with constant interest and animation, belying the air of stolid stupidity he affected.

"This is Corlaer, Master Ormerod," said the governor. "And with him is come a friend of ours, one of the two war-chiefs of the Six Nations. Peter, Master Ormerod hath a letter for you from Master Juggins in London."

"Ja," he said vacantly.

I handed him the letter. He turned it over and over in his hand and picked at the seal. Then he handed it to the Indian.

"You read it," he said.

I looked from one to the other with astonishment; but 'twas the governor who intervened.

"Your pardon, Peter," he said good-naturedly enough, "but that letter happens to deal with a most confidential subject."

"Oh, ja," said Corlaer indifferently. "But I do not read."

"Take the letter, Ga-en-gwa-ra-go," said the Indian. "Ta-wan-ne-ars does not seek your secrets. But you need have no fears. This young Englishman is Ta-wan-ne-ars' friend."

And in his sonorous English, with a slightly guttural intonation, he recounted how I had rescued him from his childish persecutors.

The incident recalled my promise, and I broke in impetuously upon his closing words.

"Aye, your excellency, but he hath forgotten to add that I pledged myself to beseech you to make it illegal to mock at Indians in the city streets."

"An excellent thought," approved Colden. "We have trouble enough winning the friendship of the tribes without subjecting the visiting chiefs to humiliation in our midst."

"It shall be done at once," declared the governor.

He drew forward a fresh sheet of paper and hurriedly scrawled upon it the necessary instructions, then returned his attention to the Indian.

"Ta-wan-ne-ars," he continued, "I need your friendship. I need the friendship of every one of your people for our king."

The Seneca drew himself erect.

Hatred in the heart of the Indian, caused by the knowledge of an unavenged wrong, is to furnish Ormerod a valuable ally in the work he has come to America to do.

Lesson for February 13

MAKING OUR HOMES CHRISTIAN

LESSON TEXT—Eph. 5:22-6:4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let us love one another for love is of God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Child at Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Obedience at Home.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Unselfishness in the Home.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Make Our Homes Christian.

I. The Importance of the Home.

The oldest and most important institution in the world is the family. It is the foundation stone upon which all other institutions are built. In the measure that the home is kept pure and strong will the church, society and the nation be pure and strong.

II. The Makers of the Home.

The foundation upon which the home is built is marriage, and the makers of the home are the man and the woman united in holy wedlock.

III. The Obligations of the Members of the Home.

1. The husband (Eph. 5:25-32).
(v. 25.) The husband is to love his wife (v. 25). Observe—

a. The measure of this love is the love of Christ for His church. Christ loved the church so that He gave Himself for it. His was a self-emptying love. The obligation enjoined then on the husband is to manifest that self-emptying love toward his wife.

b. The purpose of this love (vv. 28, 27).
The purpose of the husband's self-emptying love is the perfection of his wife's character.

c. The ground of this love (vv. 28-30).
After all, the ground of the husband's love for his wife is his own self. He that loveth his wife loveth himself.

(2) The husband is to be joined unto his wife (v. 31).

When the time comes for a man to establish a home, he leaves his father and mother and is joined to his wife. This results in the creation of the new unity of society.

2. The wife (Eph. 5:22-24).
She is to be subject to her own husband. This is not an arbitrary matter, but it is according to the divine arrangement. It is to be "as unto the Lord." It is important to inquire as to what kind of subjection is enjoined. In order to understand this, we must grasp the figure which the apostle introduces of Christ and the church. Christ's loving the church is without ulterior motive, as true love "seeketh not its own." Since Christ gave Himself for the church, He thus lifted the church into union with Himself and became to it Lord in the power of His love. The church responds to this love by lovingly recognizing the Lordship of Christ. Just as the church graciously comes under the guidance and direction of Jesus Christ does the wife respond to the love of her husband. Headship of the man is the divine order. Headship never suggests "boss-ship" nor governorship. Observe with reference to this subjection—

(a) The motive (v. 22). "As unto the Lord."

(b) The ground (v. 23). "The husband is the head of the wife."

(c) The extent of (v. 24). "In everything."

3. The children (6:1-3).
The divine purpose in the union of the male and the female in the bonds of holy wedlock is the propagation of the race. When God pronounced His benediction upon the first pair He said, "Be fruitful and multiply."

(1) Obedience to parents (v. 1).
The ground of this obedience is the fact that the parents stand in the place of God to the child.

(2) Honor the parents (v. 2).
Obedience to parents is limited to the period of immaturity. When the children take their place in the establishment of new units in society they are no longer under obligation to obey their parents. Two gracious promises are attached to this commandment, that it may be well with thee and that thou mayest live long on the earth.

4. The parents (v. 4).
Doubtless the word "fathers" was intended to be inclusive of the "mothers."

(1) Provoke not your children, to wrath.
This doubtless means that in the exercise of parental authority there should be avoidance of irritation.

(2) To bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.
Nurture doubtless means to educate and admonition means discipline.

Religious Instruction

It is time that we give attention to the religious instruction of the children of America.—President Harding.

When Souls Are Saved

There never was a spirit-filled church but that there were souls saved for the kingdom.—J. E. Suter.

God Gives Strength

It is at the point where we are just about to faint, that God gives us strength to go on.—Echoes.

Girl Regains Buoyant Health

Wracked by a Cough, Worn Out by Sleeplessness, With Strength Undermined, Charming Belleville Girl Restored to Good Health by Tanlac. Gains 22 Pounds.

The amazing recovery of Miss Catherine Dinges, 400 South Second St., Belleville, Ill., has excited a great deal of comment among her friends. "But it is not so surprising," says Miss Dinges. "A severe and persistent cough exhausted me so completely that I became alarmed, fearing that my health and strength would be completely undermined. I seldom slept, and tossed and turned all night, then I would get up tired and worn-out."

"Now all the ambitious days of drowsiness, sluggishness and exhaustion are gone. I feel and look better than ever before. I have a hearty appetite and my weight has increased 22 pounds. I give Tanlac all the credit for my marvelous recovery. Every woman should take it, regularly."

This tonic, made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula, usually builds up weak bodies, puts flesh on scrawny bones, frees the system of poison and drives out causes of pain. Get your first bottle from your druggist—today!

CORNS

Ends pain at once!

In one minute pain from corns is ended. Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads do this safely by removing the cause—pressing and rubbing of shoes. They are thin, medicated, antiseptic, healing. At all drug and shoe stores. Cost but a trifle.

How to Get There

An Englishman, who was far off his course and confused about his next directions, asked an Irishman, cutting peat in the wilds of Connemara, how to get to Letterfrack. The Irishman labored over the directions, so intricate and roundabout were the roads, until, having done his best, he added this: "If it was meself that was going to Letterfrack, faith I wouldn't start from here!"—New Outlook.

Agreed With Her

She—Jack, I love you because you're the sweetest, handsomest, most fascinating man in the world.

He—And I love you, dearest, because you are so frank and truthful.—Boston Transcript.

ORLAND

The home of George Gee, Sr., was the setting for a small wedding party Saturday afternoon, Jan. 29 when the only daughter, Gladys Viola was united in marriage to Mr. George T. Gore of Morris, The Rev. Elmer Setterlund of the Orland M. E. church performed the ceremony.

The young couple will reside in Lemont where Mr. Gore is manager of the L. N. R. Beatty Lumber Co.

Those present from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gore, Mrs. Lucy Gore of Morris, Mr. and Mrs. George Gee, Jr., and daughter Virginia of Orland, Mr. Edward Gee and daughter Ruth of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gee and daughter Barbara of Orland.

Mrs. Edward Gee formerly Helen Schussler, of Orland, has returned to her Chicago home from Burnside hospital, where she had a goitre removed.

Mrs. Florence Gee Johnson who came to Illinois from Cottonwood, Minnesota to visit friends and relatives, is prolonging her stay as nurse to her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Peterson of Chicago who has been ill for a month with bronchitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Funk and Mr. and Mrs. Bruggemann attended the banquet given in the new Palmer House Gold Room by the South-Town Realty Association Feb. 2nd. It was an elaborate affair. A 10 course dinner which was followed by a high class vaudeville program. The realtors in and around 1114th Street have consolidated with the Blue Island board. This announcement will interest many.

Mrs. Lulu Rogers was surprised on Friday last when amid a dish-washing stunt a crowd of her friends walked in the house laden with good things to eat and an assortment of gifts to please the most critical. A wonderful time was had playing bunco. After this the refreshments were served. Many went to their homes only to return for an evening's pleasure. At 11 o'clock the Fulton home was ablaze with lights so we presume this day and night party did not break up until after 12 bells.

The masquerade of the Tinley Park Firemen on Saturday night was largely attended. The men surely were fine looking in their blue suits with brass buttons. They were constantly to be seen mingling among the dancers maintaining order and sociability. The costumes of George Washington and Martha worn by Mr. Voss and wife were greatly admired. Also worthy of favorable comment was a group of young men dressed to represent Russians, Jews and Bolsheviks. Their make up was splendid. The masks were removed at 11 p. m. and prizes were awarded. We wonder why "our own" Tinley Park orchestra boys were not given preference to outside musicians?

The Boys' Basketball team of the Triangle Club will play against the Blue Island team Tuesday night.

The Tuesday afternoon bunco game held in the Gift Shop was splendidly attended. Mrs. Brown Campbell won first prize, Mrs. Ed. Henke, second and Mrs. Baldwin, consolation.

Mrs. Henry Quinn spent the day with Mrs. W. B. Combs, Tuesday.

Mr. Edward Henke has purchased a new Chrysler Sedan.

Wednesday, Feb. 16 at 8 p. m. in the main dining room of the Oak Forest Infirmary the Boy Scouts of Oak Forest will be invested with their charter. Prominent speakers, members of the county board will address the assembly. A program and entertainment will fill the evening.
